THE HOLROYD MANSION & IRON GATE CAFE

Albany Public School 10 was built at this site in 1838. Upon its closure in the 1890's James Holroyd, a wealthy industrialist bought it to convert into his personal residence. He did a total renovation with the addition of Romanesque Revival sandstone facade in the front which included a two story carved bay window. He also added a balcony to the side overlooking his gardens and a conservatory with a conical roof to the rear.

The mansion was purchased & restored by the Dively's for their home in 2001 from a doctor who used it as an office & residence since 1947. Another building was added to the side of the home in the 1920's. This building is where the Iron Gate Cafe, a family owned business began in 2003. Originally Kevin & Jason opened the cafe as primarily a takeout restaurant. By 2009 the Iron Gate Cafe changed it's focus and started table service. To accommodate extra seating the restaurant expanded into the mansion. As you eat in the original dining room you may still notice many of the original details such as the plaster ceiling, carved woodwork, & stained glass. The original conservatory with a beamed ceiling is today the large eating area overlooking the side & rear gardens. A front patio and back courtyard have been added to allow al fresco dining.

We hope you enjoy the architecture, ambience, & wholesome food while dining at the Iron Gate Cafe.
